Jason J. Dickinson, Ph.D., is a Professor of Psychology at Montclair State University. He frequently consults with attorneys, law enforcement, and the child protection community to translate research findings into public policy, inform investigative practices, and evaluate the reliability of children's testimony.

His research has been supported by numerous grants from the National Science Foundation (NSF). His ongoing NSF funded research on tele-forensic interviewing has been instrumental in shaping policy and training initiatives for safely conducting forensic interviews with children during the Covid-19 pandemic.
