

Dianna Smoot is the Director of Community Education at the Dallas Children's Advocacy Center (DCAC). In this role she oversees the development and implementation of child protection training geared to child-serving organizations, community members, parents, and children. She also coordinates the DCAC Lecture Series, a workshop series for child protection professionals.