Bio - Saribel Quinones has been in clinical practice as a pediatric nurse practitioner in primary care for over 20 years. She has been teaching pediatric nursing in both the undergraduate and graduate programs for almost 10 years. Dr. Quinones specializes in child maltreatment and has worked in child advocacy centers and in foster care agencies both in New York and in Florida. She is the current president of the National Association of Pediatric Nurse Practitioners (NAPNAP) Child Maltreatment and Neglect special interest group.