Ebony Cherry is a Forensic Interviewer and Mental Health Advocate at The Center for Family Safety and Healing, at Nationwide Children's Hospital in Columbus, Ohio. Ebony provides forensic interviews for children in the Child Advocacy Center, as well in the Emergency Department. As a Mental Health Advocate, she provides support to non-offending caregivers coping with their child’s upsetting event. Ebony also provides the Child and Family Traumatic Stress Intervention (CFTSI), a brief (5-8 session), evidence-based early intervention for children ages 7-18 years old, together with a non-offending caregiver. In 2013, and again in 2018, Ebony had the privilege of being trained by the Yale Child Study Center, the developers of CFTSI. In her eleven years in the Child Advocacy Center, thousands of families have shown her what research proves time and time again: that a supportive, non-offending caregiver is one of the most important factors in a child’s healing.
